Mr Peart wins deal for sugar below world prices

_ (مندنونت وجون

After nearly 20 hours of arduous negotiations in Luxembourg, the British Government today accepted an EEC deal which should provide housewives with supplies of relatively cheap sugar during the coming months.

The agreement among mini-sters of agriculture of the Nice means that the Government will now break off exploratory talks with the Australians who were offering Britain a long-term sugar arrangement. This would bave heen incompatible with Community rules.

Tha Government's decision to opt for an EEC deal in preference to a more costly agreement with the Australians has farreaching repercussions.

It will provide valuable ammunition for pro-marketeers in Britain who will be able to argue that EEC membership can some-times help to keep down British ood prices. At the same time it tightens Britain's economic dependence on the Community

After the meeting, Mr Peart, the Minister of Agriculture, told journalists he thought he had obtained a deal which should provide security for Britshould provide security for British sugar supplies in the future: "The Community is going to pay to make good the Community's sugar shortage, which happens to be mainly in Britain", he said. Thalidomide | No backsliding over election promises Mr Wilson tells party

Political Correspondent

Mr Wilsoo, who was elected yesterday for his footneeoth sessioo as leader of the Labour Party, told a meeting of the Parliamentary Labour Party that "there will be no hucksliding" on the promises Labour had made during the general election campaign.

Tha Prime Minister repeated his forecast that Lahour's overall majority would be suffi-cient to ensure that the Gor-ernment would complete the job it was elected to do.

He said the parties and groupings facing the Government can unite nn nothing, and any of them who, for factious purposes, tries to work for the defeat of the Government, would know that they were risking an election which the country clearly does not want and in which they would be decisively rejected".

In saying that, Mr Wilsun confirmed his assessment made oo the night of the election. Nobody in the Labour l'arty, he said, had at any time during the election minimized the gravity of the economic crisis facing Britain. Nor did they fail to ideovify the causes or attribute the responsibility.

Mr Wilson continued: "If, as we assume, all the main problems Britaio fuces, and has faced for many years, are not limited to probleous like oil and the world food and monetary situations, the fact is that Britain's ability to meet these problems is affected by struc-tural and iodustrial weaknesses at home, Passengers say they've never flown in a plane as comfortable as the Lockheed L-1011 TriStar. From takeoff to touchdown.

In flight, you feel as if you are relaxing in a spacious living room instead of a narrow tunnel. Graceful lines accentuate the eight-foot sculptured ceilings and straight-up-and-down walls. There's more elbow room, more leg room, more storage room. TriStar is roomy comfort.

TriStar is also comfortable on the ears. The U.S. Government certificated it as the quietest big jet in the world.

When it comes time to land, passengers notice the greater comfort of the TriStar in another way. It's the only plane with a direct lift control system that eliminates the disturbing ups and downs you feel on other planes as they make their landing approach. Pilots say that TriStar responds quicker and surer to their touch, thanks to its unique "flying tail." And that's a comforting thought.

Six of the Free World's ten largest airlines have chosen TriStar comfort. And recently Cathay Pacific

Brighton

The people of Brighton might feel they were very lucky to have a company strong enough to carry through a marina project in the present adverse financial conditions, Mr Peter Boydell, QC, told a public inquiry yesterday. Nothing could he more disastrous than for the project to be halted at the present stage of development.

Mr Boydell was speaking on the opening day of the inquiry into plans for a marina which were submitted last January. They are being opposed on the ground that they differ substantially from both the original scheme approved after a previous inquiry in 1966 and from revised plans for which outline plansing permission was granted in 1071 planning permission was gran-ted in 1971.

The present inquiry was ordered by Mr Rippon, former Secretary of State for the En-Secretary of State for the Environment, in February a few hours before the plans were due to go before Brighton conncil. Work on the project so far has been confined to the harbour, which was authorized by Acr of Parliament in 1970 and is dua to open in 1977, and to some hasic engineering works approved by the council in August.

Protests have mainly concerned the visual effect of the new scheme, the extra trafficit would generate, and the increased emphasis on supposedly profitable luxury housing. But dropped altogether.

The main objector at the inquiry, which is expected to last at least aix weeks, is the Brighton Marina Action Campaign, representing several local amenity societies. But there are also a number of smaller groups, including the local branch of the Communist aid on easy repayment terms and "without strings", Mr T. N. Kaul, the Indiao Amhessa-dor to the United States, told foreign journalists at a lunchcon in Delhi today.

This was the most positive public statement to date by an indian Government official on the politically sensitive issue of American food aid, which was remninated in 1971 after a series of good harvests.

Time and the law on the side of the customer

We live in an impatient age and the law recognizes that con-sumer impatience is easily niques. A housewife who needs a new vacuum cleaner may readily sign an instalment agree-ment to buy the model demon-strated in her drawing room. When the salesmen bas gone, she may have second thoughts. The law provides a "cooling off" period for all home instalment sales, and although the housewife has already signed a copy of the agreement at home. the firm is still obliged to send ber a second copy by post. Once she receives the second copy, sbe has four days to decide whether to post a letter cancelling the transaction. If she changes her mind, she is also entitled to insist on having her deposit back, nor need she take the cleaner hack to the shop herself. She can wait until the firm sends someone to col-

The law is generally a suice observer of the calendar and clock, and where a time is stipulated, delivery must be made accordingly. Any delay will be regarded as a breach for which the customer can claim compensarion.

Consumers who place an order, without a delivery date takes three weeks, can involve will be able to get a mortgage heing promised, are still entitled the customer in expense, par-without difficulty. When the to expect delivery within a ticularly if he uses it for his completion date arrives, they exploited and seeks to protect reasonable time. Once a man has us, particularly if we are the placed an order, it is up to the victim of home selling techsupplier to notify him when delivery will he made. If this is not prompt anough for his requirements, he can cancel his order. Howaver, by pressing for delivery after a delay the consumer will be taken to bave accepted the delay.

Deadlines can cut hoth ways. A housewife may get several estimates to instal a new kitchen. After months of delay kitchen. After months of delay she cannot write in to the contractor with the cheapest estimate, when prices might have risen, and say she nccepts his price, expecting to hold him to his original figure.

Again, a man may advertise his old caravan for sale and his old caravan for sale and wish to hold out as long as possible for the highest offer. To speed things up, a prospective buyer may state that his offer of £500 will remain open only until a certain date; but this does not mean that the buyer cannot withdraw his offer hefore the deadline. before the deadline arrives and hefore it has been accepted. A consumer who is prejudiced unreasonable delay may he entitled to compensation. A contractor who promises to rebusi ness In certain circumstances the contractor may he under an ohligation to compensate the customer for loss of profits due to the delay. A firm of engifinish the contract late, guests may bave to be turned away. The hotel's loss of profit for the period due to their delay would he their responsibility. Whera no business element is involved, the ordinary bouseholder could not expect much compensation, unless the judge thought tha inconvenience he bad suffered was severe.

A consumer who changes his mind and decides to cancel his order, say, for a new car, is not entitled to do so, except on the ground of excessive delay. In law the dealer would be able to insist on being compensated for his anticipated loss of tha profit which he would have made on the sale, though this only applies when the model ordered is not in short supply. It sometimes happens that couple needing a bome rusb in pair a machine or motor car to sign a contract to buy a within seven days, but in fact house or flat believing that they find that their mortgage ar rangements bave not come through and their bank will not pravide bridging finance. To a certain extent, time is, in law, still on their side. The date for or to install a central heating of the essence of an agreement system in a guest house, in time for the winter season. is specifically etipulated as being so in the contract.

However, they cannot delay payment indefinitely. Once the date for completion bas passed, the seller is entitled to serve on the buyers a ootice to complete and pay up by a certain date, usually in one month. This means that the deadline is then made of the essence of the contract and if the huyers are still unable to arrange their finances and complete by the time it ex-pires, they will be liable to for-feit their deposit. They could also be made to pay additional compensation if the owner bas to aell the property elsewhere at a loss. The best advice one can give prospective bousebuyers is never to sign a contract unless and until a building society has given a written assurance that the loan will be forthcoming.

Two generations of distinguished Veronese painters

Psolo Caliari is undeniably the greatest painter to have been born in Verona, end thus the name "Veronae, end thus the is nurmally known is perfectly justified, even though he spent must of his working life in the important cultural centre during the sixteenth century, and two generations of activities of considerable distinction who flourished there are the subject of a comprehensive exhibition in the Palazzo della Gran Guardie, Verona, until November 4.

Guardie, Verona, until November 4.

Enritled Fifty Years of Veronese Painting, 1580-1630, it begins with Felice Brusasorzi (1539/40-1605), who almost certainly studied with Vasari in Florence at the time when the laster was arbiter of taste at the Medici court, coordinating the activities of a group of the activities of a group of Both Turchi and Bassetin artists and craftsmen whose compibuted to the embellishmost remarkable achievement ment of the Chepel of the Rosis the exquisite studiolo in the palazzo Vecchio: this is the quintessence of Mannerism, abstruse in iconography, cal projects whose impetus refined in execution and accession of the Council of the Council of abstruse in iconography, cal projects whose impetus refined in execution and accessible puly to the initiated.

It was thus mainly from Trent Built 1585-96, the chapel Florence rather than Venice was in 1607 lined with pink strates how far the painter had already moved away from his master's early style in the direction of Bolognese classi-cism. The softness of the surface modelling is underpinned by a firm sense of structure and accompanied by a range of clear fresh colours (green-blue, golden yellow and raspberry pink) that recent restoration has reveeled in its pristing beeuty. From above the altar the

Another lunette from the same chapel which depicts, in two perts, The Annunciation, seems to be the only recorded work by Dario Pozzo (1592-c 1652) and is signed and dated 1628. is signed and dated 1628.

Compered with this extended schedule, the huilding of the chapel of the Holy Innocents et S Stefano wes carried out with phenomenal speed, in only three years (1618-21). Commissioned by Campn Varalli, the chapel was intended as the chapel was intended as a repository for a group of relics especially pre-cious to the Veronese, and had iostalled themselves in Rome, whence their coordinations were sent, while Ottino was probably still in Verooa, a supposition which is given added weight by the fact that his central is made up from three horizontal string thereon three horizontal strips, whereas the other two are single units, suggesting non-local manufac-ture. In style too there are hig differences, elthough here it is Bassetti who is the odd man out: Ottino's work clearly owes much to Guido Reni's famous version (1611, now in the Pine-coteca, Bologna) and Turchi's tn hoth Caravaggio and the Canon Carracci.

The inauguration of the chapel mey be taken as the official leunching of the new classical style in Verone, and It three canvases were ordered for the altars: Tutchi pointed a Martydom of the Forty Martyrs, Outino a Massacre of the Innocents and Bassetti The Five Bishop Saints. By this date both Turchi and Bassetti thee, with its strongly charac-

aspect of the exhibition is the special setting which has been derised by Arrigo Rudi in an attempt apparently to re-create the atmosphere of the studies in which these artists produced their works. I wonder how many Renaissance painters worked in rooms hung (very hedly) with bettleship-grey awnings and furnished with enormous balks of unpainted timber? Also, she caught the delicete balance needed io this ballet between sincerity and artifice: if either becomes too prominent, the work topples. David Wall, too, has the kneck of getting the mixture

Eisler's nonet, so far from attempting any neoclassical synthesis, is an unashamed piece of theatre band music with elements of parody rather in the spirit of Weill, though very much rounded at the edges. The rhythms veer between the jazzy and the militeristic, eventually combining the two in e faintly macehre "marcia funèbre à le Mexikeua". The work is a suite, fragmentary, a little too flippant for absolute comfort considering its length, but often genuinely witty and genuinely attractive. It would be nice to hear its predecessor. The Vesuvius Ensemble pitched into the music with terrific verve, after sounding pddly muffled in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. There may have been acoustic reasons for that effect, since the hall was poorly filled and much too resonant for the clear sound necessary in classical chamber music. Even so the music was deeply affecting. Is there a more beautiful piece of music, in existence then the Larghetto of this quintet?

They stressed, among other virtues, the fact that there was a guarantee of freedom of movement without any reservations (these three words were underlined in the official text) and "freedom for you gentlement to write you want".

Mr Tom Bradley, the black mayor of Los Angeles, thought the members of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) would not be satisfied with a situation whereby this freedom existed only for two or

When I asked if the IOC should he concerned about what happens before and after an Olympic Games, two answers came from the platform. Mr Bradley felt that as no change of policy was required it would he more effective. A compat-riot, Mr John Argus (suitably named for such an occasioo) said be felt that the IOC would, indeed, be concerned about what bappened at other periods of time. No, be did not accept as appropriate pow, the force of argument that it was a part of the Olympic creed to apread the Olympic gospel in the bope of encouragiog better standards of hebaviour.

Mr Bradley went further in his comparisons. In his address to the IOC he promised that Los Angeles would protect all athletes, officials and spectators from harm or barassment by political demonstrations. The choice for the ciry to hold the 1980 Olympic Games will be announced in the town hall here tomorrow morning. If the popular (if that is the word) choice is Moscow, it was clear at a press conference today that the Los Angeles delegation bad done their best to put a democratic boot in. They Put at its best, I am given to believe that, though the main stadium, at present nothing more than a bole in the ground, will be ready for the Games less than two years hence (strikes permittiog), the revolutionary roof cover would probably have to follow later. This is of no immediate consequence as the athletics events may not. In any case, be beld under cover. The roof, of some kind of plastic sheeting, is designed to collapse rather like a parachnte and swing to one side of the stadium when not required.

From Innsbruck we learnt one

From Innsbruck we learnt one From Innsbruck we learnt one small grain of news, that the Nordic skiers for the 1976 Winter Games may, if they wish, make private arrangements to stay at Seefeld rather than live in the Olympic village and commute daily. Cellbacy may thus be avoided by those who subscribe to the view that sexual activity is a belp rather than a hindrance to athlebe endeavour.

Lake Placid went through the formalities of presenting their case for the 1980 Wioter Games. In the absence of another candidate, their position is gilt-edged. Given that Lake Placid, who held the Games in 1932, starts with so many advantages, it now seems loconceivable that they will be disappointed. It may be though, that their walkover may influence the chance of Los Angeles, though, as Mr Bradley pointed out, it would be unfair to penalize Los Angeles because there was no competition Lake Placid went through the because there was no competition for Lake Placid.

The IOC took the unusual step of expelling one of its members today. He was General Prabhas Charusathiari, of Thailand. He has never attended since his elec-tion and, now that he has fled to Taiwan for political reasons, be is ineligible for membership.

Pakistan want new ICC constitution

Constitution

Labore, Oct 22.—Pakistan will try to introduce a new constitution for the International Cricket Conference which would abolish the veto rights presently held by England and Australia.

Abdul Haftz Kardar, the president of the Pakistan Cricket Control Board, said the new constitution would do away with the differential between founder members and full members of the ICC. At present Australia and England are the two founder members and, as such, have the right to veto any decisions taken at meetings. Pakistan, with other Commonwealth countries, are full members but minor cricket countries are voted associate members.

Mr Kardar said the veto was undemocratic and not compatible with present-day requirements, and the draft constitution would be circulated among interested countries. It would also provide for ICC meetings to be held outside England—at present they are held in London under the chairmanship of the current MCC president.—Reuter.

Now that the domestic hockey programms is launched the time has come to review the international scene. In about a month's time the England World Cup Party will begin another training weekend at Royal Air Force Station, Henlow, in preparation for the third tournament in the series at Kuala Lumpur from March 1 to 15 cert year.

Rarely three enoughs after this March 1 to 15 bext year.

Barely three months after this thoughts will bave to be turned to the eight nations invitation tournament at Montreal where teams contemplating participation in the Olympic Games in 1976 will get the feel of artificial turf.

There were 14 acceptors at the four-day forfeit stage for the Observer Gold Cup, which could decide the leading trainer for this year. Peter Walwyn is in an umassoilable position so far as the number of races won is concerned, but he is still £5,384 behind Dick Efern in the total of prize money won. Both Walwyn and Hern will have a runner in this most valuable race left this season, giving it an added significance. edded significance.

Revie tells his first England party they must believe in themselves

By a Staff Reporter Don Revie erected a signpost to England's football future yesterday, when he announced his first England party fur the European Championship tie with Czechoslovakia al Wembley on October 30. Six ancapped players and comparative newcomers like Dobson, Brooking and Weller are Included in the 24 but so too were the old guard, represented hy such men as Clarke, Hughes, Hunter and guard, represented by such men as Clarke, Hughes, Hunter and Bell.

Mr Revie said: "It is not going to be easy. I would have liked five or six games before facing a compenitive match. The Czechs have been together for a long time. I have seen them twice and they are a well halanced, skilled side who know each other's play. They get beluind the ball and make it very difficult to score."

Mr Revie's high opinion of the Czechs, together with the worries of the morate-shattering effect a defeat in his first game as England manager would have, could incline him towards a safety-first policy at wembley. But If hie does decide to toss his young tions into the arens, Mr Revie has no doubts they will produce the bold and stylish plsy he advocates as the ultimate answer to England's recent international decline.

"The England side has nor only got to win, but has gor to du so in a style which will excite people", says Mr Revie, and it two of his uncapped players. Trevor Francis and David Tbnnas, he has youngsters ideally suited to such a task.

The 20-year-old Francis is curme mas youngaters to early stated to such a task.

The 20-year-old Francis is currently delighting in his new attacking role at Birmingham, Thomas, 24, has consistently shown speed and skill as one of the few orthodox wingers in the first division.

It has never occurred to me to the too leav in any other position.

"It has never occurred to me to try to play in any other position or style", says Thomas. "Even when wingers appeared to he out of fashion I got under-23 caps and was told to play my normal game. I feel it's the best way to use my ability, so that's the way I play it. I enjoy taking defenders on and Rangers give me the go-ahead to do it. Now I'm hoping Don Revie will give me the chance." Thomas has stuck to bis style to reach the top; Francis has thanged his to get there. He is now given far more freedom in the Birmingham front line and has esponded by scoring 10 goals. "You can imagine how I feel shen you consider I thought that ny task this season was to wio ack a place in the under-23 side, fiter missing the summer tour", iconcile said fter missing the summer tour", rancis said.

Ipswich's young defensive colsus, Kevin Beattle, William Addren, the Middlesbrough entre half, and midfield men, than Hudson, of Stoke City, and terry Francis, of Queen's Park tangers, are the other uncapped layers in the party.

Mr Revie took one last look at number of possibles in Eric aylor's testimonial game at Shefield on Monday and that proved stroke of luck for the Leicester aprain Weller. "He played so ell there I just had to add him", ud Mr Revie. "There are so

His immediate predecessor, Joe Mercer, who was caretaker manager of England for seven matches after Sir Alf Ramsey's departure, felt that confidence was the least of Mr Revie's concerns. "I felt I had restored a great deal of beitef among the players after the Poland dehacle."

But Mr Mercer agreed with the decision to omit Macdonald despite the striker's recent good form. Mr Mercer said: "Playing against Continental opposition, you've got to plsy off people, and open up the gaps that way, Macdonald is not that type of player."

Mr Mercer said: "Playing against Continental opposition, you've got to plsy off people, and open up the gaps that way, Macdonald is not that type of player."

The last link with the 1966 World Cup triumph appears to have been broken by the omission of Ball and Peters.

Geoffrey Green writes: The list is predictable in the main. One of the mure interesting selections is that of Thomas, of whom Mr Revie said three or four years sgo "this boy could be the finest player in all Europe". Of the new men I would give Maddren little chance; one of the Francis players might make it; but about Thomas I have an open mind. Of the others it is good to see the name of Hudson. He is a fine player in the right company. All I hope is that Mr Revie sticks to his dictum that England benceforth will play constructive attacking football.

Chelsea certainly contributed to their own demise by scoring two finely beaded goals in the first balf, unfortunstely into their own ner. But Stoke were superh here, inspired by Hndson and early success; Chelsea recovered later but were ragged end ratifed and fortunate that only Garner's name went into Mr Toseland's book.

Stoke roared off to a perfect start. In the second minute perjic passed forward into the penalty area where Haslegrave turned the ball into the path of Hurst, puffing characteristically through the middle, and away Stoke went on their mad ride. It was a pteasing moment for Hurst, who bad missed a couple of reasonahle chances in the first replay. Chelses chased sbsdows for ten minutes and then conceded another. New classification of common path bars horses

Regina v Secretary of State for nf a "road used as a public " a hridleway" nr a "by-way the Environment and Another, path" open td all traffic ".

Ex parte Hood After e certain procedure the The county council, supported Ex parte Hood ment in August, 1973, confirming the council's proposal that a highway, at Herne Common, shown on the definitive mep prepared under the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act, 1949, as awended, as a road used es a public path (CRF 30) should be reclassified as a footpath.

Mr Leonard Hoffmann for the applicant; Mr. Harry Woolf for the Secretary of State.

Secretary of State.

The LORD CHIEF JUSTICE said that the highway in question was a short and unimportant length of path, but the application raised an important principle.

By section 27 of the 1949 Act county councils were required to preduce draft maps of their area showing e footpath or e bridleway as; appeared to the chuncil to be appropriate. By subsection (2) a map should also show any way which in the opinion of the council was, at the relevant dare e road unied as e public path.

By section 27(6) "footpath"

asied as e public path.

By sectinn 27(6) "footpath" meant a highway nver which the public bad a right of way no foot nift other than such a bighway at the side of a public road. "Bridleway," meant a highway over which the public bed no right of way on foot, but only a right of way on horseback or leading a horse with or without a right to drive amuals of any description along the highway. "Public path" meant either e fnotpath or a brilleway, and "road used as a public path" meant e highway other than a public peth used by the public mainly for the purposes for which footpaths or bridieways wat so used.

That map together with an accompenying statement, was by section the 32(4) conclusive as to the particulars contained therein to the Times of the Times

Not horse can be ridden over a highway which was reclassified as a footpath by Kent County Council in 1972.

The Divisional Court, Mr Justice Ackiner dissenting, refused an application by Mrs Margaret Crathia Hood, of McNah Piggeries, St. Nicholas, Birchington, Kent, a member of the British Horse Society, for eo order of certiorari to quash the decision of the Secretary of State for the Euriron ment in August, 1973, confirming ment in August, 1973, confirming the statement of the statement and the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the statement a footpath, it was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the statement a footpath, it was conclusive evidence that there was at the statement a footpath, it was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map showed a product of the map showed and the map showed a product of the map showed and the map showed and the map showed in the map showed and sevidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the statement a footpath, it was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the statement a footpath, it was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the statement a footpath, it was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the relevant date specified in the map was conclusive evidence that there was at the map was conclusive evidence that the

So a presumption was created that if e road was shown on e map as a road used as a public path it conclusively established that at the relevant date a right of way on foot and on borseback existed over the path. existed over the path. Section 33 contained a compre-

Section 33 contained a comprehensive procedure for revising those maps from time to time. In the present case nothing bad bappened which would justify a factual review of the map in question, and the fact thet doubts bad arisen whether the path ever had bridleway rights established by the public would not in itself justify any alteration.

The classification was "road used as a public path", and the sole reason for its alteration was the Countryside Act, 1968, which provided for a special review of footpath maps. Every road used as a public path was to he alternatively described as "by-way open to all traffic", "bridleway on "roed nsed as a public path" and the expression "roed nsed as a public path" was no longer to be employed in the definitive map. was un inoger to be employed in

Paragraph 10 of Schedule 3 to the Act provided that the conont foot, but nnly a right of way nn horseback nr leading a hurse wink or withnut a right to drive aminials of any description along the highway. "Public path" meant e highway that one retains a public path " meant e highway other than a public peth used by the public mainly for the purposes for which fontpaths or bridieways were so used.

It was only where public rights were not clearly confined to a sorted to the imprecise definition to be taken into siderations to be taken into siderations to be taken into secount for reclassification of a public path were (1) whether any vehicular right of way existed; (2) whether the way was smitshle for vehicular traffic; and (3) whether where the way had been used for such traffic the extinguishment of such rights would cause under hardship.

Mrs Hood was interested in which could be used by the public with horses. She contended that it should be reclassified either as by the Secretary of State, took the view that on reclassification the proper new classification was as a "footpath".

There was nothing in paragraph.

10 to assist in deciding whether the classification should be "bridleway" rather than "footpath "once it was decided that it was not a "by-way open to all traffic." and the issue was whether the noth in mornior. whether the path in question should be a bridleway or a foot-way.

In his Lordship's judgment the county council and the Secretary coonty cooncil and the Secretary of State were correct. His Lordship could not accept that the only matters to be taken into account were those set out in paragraph 10. Nor could he accept that a presumption relating to a bridleway which flowed from the fact that that way was formerly described as a "road used as a public path" could in any sense be conclusive of its proper classification under the 1968 Act between "bridleway" and "footpath". His Lordship would dismiss the epplication.

Mr Justice Milmo agreed.

MR JUSTICE ACKNER said that MR JUSTICE ACKNER said that the tests for reclassification in paragraph 10 related only to whether the first of the three descriptions, "by way open to all traffic" was or was not the eppropriate description and provided no test for differentiating between "bridieway" and "footpath". That suggested quite clearly that roads used as public paths were not to be downgraded beyond that of a bridleway miless there was evidence that could be properly considered under section 33 of the 1949 Act as amended by Schedule 3 to the 1968 Act. If Parliament wished substantially to increase the powers of an authority to inter-MR JUSTICE ACKNER said that powers of an authority to inter-fere with nr reduce public rights it must do so in clear and un-equivocal terms.

In his Lordship's judgment, the Secretary of State was not there-fore entitled in the circumstances of the case to reclassify the road otherwise than in accordance with the conclusive presumptions created by section 32(4)(h) of the 1949 Act—as a bridlepath. His Lordship would quash the decision. The application was dismissed with costs.

Court of Appeal

Minister erred in giving permission for harbour marina

Harwich Harbour Conservancy Board v Secretary of State for the Environment and Others Before Lord Denning, Master of the -Rolls, Lord Justice Orr end Lord Justice Browne.

[Judgments delivered October 17] The Secretary of State for the Environment erred in law in relying upon the responsibilides of the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry under two private Acts and the Coast Protection Act. Acts and the Coast Protection Act, 1949, to prevent obstruction or danger to navigadon in Harwich harbour, instead of deciding for himself whether planning permission should or should not be granted to develop a yaching marina in the harbour.

The Course of Appeal displayed

The Court of Appeal dismissed appeals by the Stour River Estate and the Secretary of State for the Environment against the order of Mr. Justice MacKenna (The Times, December 4, 1973; [1974] 1 Lloyd's Rep 140), quashing the decision of the Secretary of State for the Environment to allow the applica-tion of the estale for plenning per-mission to develop a yachting marina for 500 lerge yachts in the marina for 500 lerge yachts in the harbour.

Mr Julian Priest, QC, Mr Harry Woolf and Mr Philip Vallance for the Secretary of State: Sir Michael Hevers, QC, and Mr Juhn Crove for the estate; Mr Kenneth Jupn, QC, Mr Michael Harrison end Mr D. G. Rohins for the herbour

The MASTER OF THE ROLLS said that the estate had to obtain permission to haild the marina from the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry under the Harwich Harbour Acts, 1863 and 1865, and the Coast Protection Act, 1949, section 34(1) (dealing with "works" lujurious or likely to cause "obstruction to navigation"). They also had to get permission under the planning Acts. The court was concerned with that nermission. permission The Secretary of State for the

The Secretary of State for the Environment appointed an luspector to hold so inquiry. The inspector was tmpressed by the "fantastic growth of commercial tonnage" in Harvich harbour and its "prime commercial importance" as a result of "our increasingly close associations with Western Europe". The inspector recommended that planning permission should be refused because the "substantial tumber of pleasure vessels might well have a detrimental effect on the commercial operation of the port" and the safety of those who used it. the safety of those who used it.

The sarety of those who used it.

The Secretary of State for the Environment took, a different view. He said that "having regard to the responsibilities of the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (who had epproved it principle a licence for the construction of the works) with regard to possible obstruction or danger to navigation" he did not consider there were any grounds for refusing planning permission. Was the Secretary of mission. Was the Secretary of State right in thinking that thet question of law could be left to the Department of Trade?

The important objectors to the proposal were the harbour board, who considered that the marina ahould not be there. In correspondence with the hoard the De-narrow view of the construction of the statutes. In one letter the department said: "We can only take into account matters concerning obstruction or danger to navigation." The inspector had thought that the consent of the department was only on the narrow view as to obstruction by the works themselves and not as to the impact of the number of

The narrow view was correct.

The wording of section 34 of the 1949 Act was with regard to operations, the construction of the works, as in the 1863 and 1865 Acts. One looked to see whether the work or operations caused an obstruction or danger to navigation and not as to the effect of the number of boats using the harbour. The licence cured eny difficulties as to obstruction but it did not cure the effect which by the yachis being there would have on the commercial traffic using the harbour. That interference with traffic and the detrimental effect on the barboar was e proper matter for the inspector.

The Secretary of State ought to have taken the responsibility of deciding the matter himself end oot to have fallen back on the Department of Trade. The Secretary of State did not consider it and his decision could not stand. The eppeal should be dismissed.

Lord Justice Orr delivered a concurring judgment, and Lord Justice Browne agreed.

[Judgmeot delivered October 17]

A trial judge was held to have rightly excluded the opinion of a psythatrist proffered by the defence thet a man accused of murder was likely to be easily provoked. The Conrt of Appeel dispussed an appeal by Terence Stuart Turner against liis conviction of murder at Bristol Crown Court (Mr Justice Bridge) on the ground that psychiatric evidence in support of hix defence of provocation had been wrongly excluded.

trist was to say that the appellam's feeling for the girl was likely to have caused an explosive release of blind rage when she confessed her wantonness to him. Those matters and their bearing on the appellant's credibility were well within ordinary human experience; the Jury did not need e psychiatrist to guide them.

Their Lordships had considered the R r Loweru (1974] AC 851, in which the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council had approved the admission of the evidence of a psychologist oo behalf of one of two cn-defeodants to establish that his version of the facts was more probable than that put forward by the other. That case was decided no its special facts and was not authority for the proposition that in all cases psychiatrists chuld be called to prove the probability of an eccused's veracity. The prospect of trial by psychlatrists replacing that by jury or magistrate was not attractive. The court, however, did not discurrage the calling of psychlatric evidence within the present rules if it could be belpful. chlatric evidence within the present rules if it could be helpful. Borough Cnuncil
Mr Justice Walton, in the Chartery Division, held that documents from the horough treasurer's affice ander section 10 of the Housing Act, 1957, requiring payment from an invere of two hauses in Highgate of expenses incurred by the local authority in making the hauses fit for human habitantoo were invalid since they were not signed by the for human habitation were invalid since they were not signed by the since they were not signed by the rown clerk or his lawful deputy. His Lordship was trying a preliminary issue in proceedings commenced by Mr Edward Stanley Craddage, of Wynfind Road, Moor Down, Bonrnemouth, egainst Haringey London Borough Council

HIS LORDSHIP said that the runnail had served notices under section 9 of the Housing Art in respect of two hooses, 106 and 108 North Hill, Highgate, on November 4, 1965, and January 19, 1966, respectively, requiring certain specified works to be carried out so as to make them fit for human habitation. The validity of those notices was not in dispute, but the works not having been executed, the council entered the premises and carried out the works themselves, as they under section to demanding payment of the amounts expended and interest thereon. A letter from the horough treasurer, dated July 2, explained that certain additional works had become necessary during the course of the work, payment for which had been included in the demands. No payment was made by Mr Graddage, and further demands were made on August 7, 14 and 22, and November 6. Name was signed by the town clerk or his deputy.

Mr Graddage sought a declaration that very much less was owing than was claimed in the original codces, and that the additional expenses should he excluded.

His Lordship referred, inter alia, to section 166 (2), which provided thet "A notice, demand, or other written document proceeding from a local authority under the Actions shall he signed by their clerk or written document proceeding from a local authority under the Act shall be signed by their clerk or his lawful deputy. . . ."

It was contended that the demands were invalid (1) because they were not signed by the town clerk or his lawful deputy, and (2) because they included expenses for work additional to those specified in the original notices. The conn-

Burke was among them.)

Sir Keith Joseph may not have been registering a claim to the leadership of the Tory party when he delivered his Birming-ham speech. The route to lead-ership in politics, like the road-to vices in war is invariably to victory in war, is invariably indirect. But he was certainly thrusting himself into e role his party needs to have played more than it needs a new leader. For some time now, indeed, he has manifestly been in dress rebearsal for the part of Philosopher-King of the Tories. A party with hule more to offer than 91 per cent mortgages, lower taxes, the vague prospect of emasculated trade unions and a general detesta-tion of the Prime Minister is no credible party at all. Unless the measures it advocates are the outcrop of a coberent view of a kind of society in which it beheves—a view deriving more from deap feelings than cold cal-culations—a party is nothing more than the simulacrum of a Las Vegas fruit machine, prom-sing include to all but deliver. ising jackpots to all but deliver-ing only to a lucky few.

Nobody can dehate with a fruit machine. And since this country needs to debete itself out of the lack of self-confi-dence that is the cause, not the consequence, of its economic difficulties, Sir Keith's therapeutic efforts applied to his own party are also a kind of service to mine. Wa have four poten-tial Gladstones in our Cabinet. The House of Commons, for its own good, needs at least one Disraeli sitting opposite them.

Yet the man who meets most of the specifications of a Disraeli slipped far below his owo level in parts of his latest speech. He should have known then, as he regretfully knows now, that public attention and public resentment would concentrate on his references to birth cootrol and obscure his far more important attempt m dethrona the dismal science of economics. And why publicize further the already over-publi-cized Mrs Mary Whitehouse?

. Even worse were his attempts to brand socialists as the friends of anarchy and the enemies of the family. I expect Tories to look backwards and have never held it against them that they do. It is a habit I have acquired myself. But Sir Keith's attack on socialist motivations so closely echoed the anguished howls of the terrified monarchists of 1848, when there were 1955. not enough genuine Reds in Europe in squeeze themselves under one royal bed, that I could bardly recognize the politician I bave always respected in the Birmingham prophet of doom I beve severely to chas-

I was possibly a more passionate socialist when I put that in my first election address than I am now; but it remains one of the few things I beve written with which I did not disagree as soon as it reached print. And it is probably the only thing I ever wrote that, even today, would unite Mr Roy Jenkins and Mr Frank Allaun in com-

But hack to Sir Keith Joseph, and back to economic man. A healthy economy, like a healthy hody, is hardly aware of its own workings. We are reminded thet we have hearts, stomachs and livers only when these organs are out of order. An ordered society would not be talking itself, as ours has done, into the economic equivalent of psychosomatic disorders.

But an ordered society does not mean a static society, frozen into a shapa that keeps the people upstairs perpetually upstairs. Those downstairs, both in the television series and in contemporary Britain, are on the move upwards, sometimes pulled, sometimes pushing. It is this process that pre-occupies Mr Tony Benn and permeates all his proposals. It is a democratic drive that must reach its fulfilment in the control of industry as it did, through universal suffrage, in the running of the country. And it is becausa some private industries obstruct it that he wants them publicly ownad. There are other reasons in the case of the shiphuilding and aircraft industries, of course, but this is the main one.

Socialists, therefore, want order — democratic order — as moch as Sir Keith. Socialists, too, want economics relegated to its proper, limited role of measuring and helping to predict. Socialism also implies a society whose economic machinery ticks over quietly and frees people to enjoy, in Jefferson's words, life, liberty and the pur-suit of bappiness. of the family, and perbeps of socialism, was published io 1955. The Tory view is that capital-ism, though neither designed nor particularly desirable, is what constructs itself when men are free to pursue their own ends. Socialists disagree, and mainly on ethical grounds. There at the point the debate should begin, this column must

Little comfort to be drawn from the lessons of the October War

The October War ended, for want of a better word, a year ago this week. But the military lessons which should he learned from that war have been ever sluce the subject of intense debate. At the time it bad been dubbed the War of the Missile, a fortnight-long campaign which had seen the guided missile replace the tank as the Queen, or the dominant piece, on the chessboards of generals? But

It is now generally accepted that the Israeli generals, pot-bellied on military success, used their tanks badly in the opening forays of the war. Armoured columns surged over the desert without adequate support from the infantry, artillery or the air. This was partly because the general staff, dominated by armoured specialists had underrated the value of infentry and artillery in the years following 1967—and parily hecause the air force were having problems of their own, dodging the surface-to-air missiles (Sams) in the clear blue skies above Sinai. Bur it was more because of this than because of any magic missiles that the Istaeli columns wera badly mauled. They were the lessons of 1939-45 not of 1973 which had to be learned as the survivors limped home in the

Only about e sixth of the Israeli tanks was destroyed by missiles anyway. Another sixth of other weapons. But the majority fell victim to other tanks. The war could thus hardly be said to have previewed the death of the tank. No more could it be said to have celebrated the birth of the missile. The ability of anniwas already understood—and the Israelis knew that the Araba had got them, though not in

The man who upped the price of détente

In contemplating the agree-ment reached hetween the United States and the Soviet Union, by the terms of which the United States grants substantial and very valuable unilateral trading advantages in return for a promise that the Soviet regime will take a single step in the direction of an elementary act of national decency that has been common to all civilized states for centuries, the first thing to note is the Byzantine nature of the formalities iovolved; because of the Soviet leaders' under-standable terror at the thought of telling even a small part of the truth to their people, the agreement takes the weird form of a coocordat between President Ford and Dr Kiss-inger on the one band, and Senator Henry Jackson on the other. The unspokeo premise, of course, is that Dr Kissinger was empowered by the Soviet authorities, at the end of bis protracted negotiations, to offer the terms laid down in the Ford-Jackson agreement; the deal obviously included a provision that no public reference to it need be made within

That is a small price to pay for an agreement of so historic the agreement, or eveo goes a substantial way towards doing so, the document enshrining ir deserves to rank with the most significant statements ever-made in the history of the United States, and I can envisage futura generations of American children learning to American children learning to recite its terms as they now do the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights or the Gettyshurg Address.

It is difficult to know where to start in examining this astonishing event, the true magnitude of which seems so far to have been saccely unported.

responsible for bringing it to its triumphant conclusion. Senator Jackson is an American politi-cian in the admirably forthright tradition of his namesake the seventh President. He fights for his country, his State and his own political career; he does not spare his political foes and does not ask them to spare him; he cooceals, meta-phorically speaking, a knife in his boot, knuckledusters hehind his back and a cosb in his hip pocket, and uses them cheerfully whenever be thinks it necessary; and if be bas a motto it is surely Pistol's assertion that Holdfast is the only dog, my duck. "

Senator Jackson was deter-mined to do aomethicg about the plight of the Soviet people, and in particular about their inability to leave their vast prison-house, even if they promised never to return. Instead of making indignant speeches to give himself and his hearers a feeling of virtue, be took the exact measure of the power which the Americao Constitution gives to a determined, popular and intelligent Senator, and proceeded to use that power. The trade Bill that for an agreement of so historic e nature and with such enormous implications; indeed, if the Soviet dictatorship keeps the Soviet dictatorship keeps uneeded by the Soviet leaders; the poiot, it was designed. more to the poiot, it was desperately wanted by Presidents Nixon and Ford, and by Dr Kissinger—in their case not on it was the Soviet price for détente. But Henry Jackson's price was higher. It was an easing of the cruel restrictions on those who wished to leave the Soviet Union, and an end to the Union, and an end to the savage persecution of those who applied to do so. And he organized enough of his fellow-Senators to ensure that the Bill, provided they stood their ground, would not be passed without the Soviet leaders paying that price. Every kind of Bernard Levin political pressure was brought to bear on him and his sup-pomers; be stood firm, and kept them no less faithful. He was told that there was no chance of Soviet agreement to so humiliating a bargain; he greeted the news with thumb no nose. The President publicly pleaded for the Bill to be passed without strings attached; Jackson tied the strings more tightly. Now I do not sing Senator Jackson's praises simply because he deserves it, but because among the most tre-mendous implications of what has happened is its demonstra-tion that in the great debate between him and Dr Kissinger, be was right and Dr Kissinger was wrong. The Kissinger argu-ment is that it is proper to give the Soviet Union what ber leaders want, provided that we also get what we want; the corollary to the argument is that the nature of the things because among the most trethat the nature of the things they want is no concern of ours. Senator Jacksoo's view is more positive. It is that we can, and should, judge the Soviet Union's demands io themselves, and not simply regard them as characteriess weights on the other end of the seesaw, to be halanced by equal weights on this; the corollary to the Senator's argument is that the nature of the things, they want does affect things they want does affect the price we ask. Dr Kissinger's devotion to freedom is nor to be doubted; but he has maintained abroughour the maintained throughout the negotiations that it is useless to demand something as valuable as internal reform from the Soviet leaders, hecause they simply will oot concede it, and we will therefore lose the chanca of getting useful external concessions. The importance of Secator Jacksoo's victory is that it shows how low have been the prices we have birtherto asked from the Soviet Union, and how much more we can now ask.

Beyond thet vital lesson, there are others to be learntand taught. It is widely believed that Senetor Jackson's campaign, and the agreement itself, conceroed the fate of the Soviet Jews. Thet belief is mistaken; nowhere in the egreement is the word Jew mentioned, and Senator Jack-son has been scrupulously careful, throughout the battle, to make clear that be was fighting for the right of Soviet citizens to leave their country if they wished, irrespective of their religion or desceot. Nothing less, after all, would have been proper; of course have been proper; of course the Jews bave led the fight to be allowed to emigrate from the Soviet Union, but only because of the historical accideot that they bave somewhere they can go. But I doubt if more than a minority, and possibly a small minority, of Soviet Jews positively want to want only to get out of the Soviet Union, and that is a feeling that is and that is a feeling that is certainly not confined to Jews. The word of mouth now spreads in the Soviet Union with astonishing speed; if the authorities keep the agreement, and Jaws are seen to be leaving in large numbers and withour prior suffering, there are bound to be others, perheps ultimately millions of them, who would demand the right that their governors have conceded. (One of the most touching, and—io its implications appalling aspects of the breaking point. But it also car-ries with it another, less happy, implication. What sort of response are the new non-Jewish emigrants to receive he that, at last, through the courage and determination of a humanitarian, they will have obtained from Russia's modern tyrants the right that even the worst of the Tsars freely accorded. Are we then to mack their right and deny their hope? Rather let us say, as was said to their grandfathers :

There are, of course, borkzons still more distant. Dr Sakharov's immediate reaction to the aonouocement of the agreement was to say, quite in the rightly, that the Soviet people will be truly free when they, can not ooly country, but when they can leave and return at will. This are Indeed, almost a definition of freedon, and Dr. Sakharov, bravest of the brave, is right to demand it in those terms.

To put it another way, there is yet another implication in the second success of Senator Jackson's and campaign—that in dealing with the tyrants we must harden our hearts against faeling grateful; every concession they make must he used as a lever to pry the covery th open the oext.

THE WORLD REACTS TO RECESSION

economy in 1975 should Mr Healey assume as he works on the Budget which he is due to open on November 12? They are an important and frequently neglected element in the various parallelograms of forces which any Chancellor has to take into flow of apending in the world economy is weak, the demand for British exports will be affected; and fewer exports means less output and fewar jobs at bome. which in turn, by the well-knnwn multiplier process, leads to a further weakening of the home

This resulting contraction in the home economy will cause some decline in tha home demand for imports; but, unless the exchange rate changes, the fall in imports will only be a fraction of the fall in exports. So, on the face of it, there will be a deterioration in the balance of payments as well as a fall in home output and a rise in unemployment.

In practice the effect on the balance of payments is not so straightforward because a world recession tends to produce a fall in world raw material prices from which the British balance of payments baoefits. Indeed, some studies of this mechanism suggest that the British balance of payments actually gains more through the fall in raw material prices than it loses through the fall in exports when there is a world trade recession.

But even if that is so, it is hard in modern political conditions for any Chancellor to sit on his hands while a world recession communicates itself through trade to the British economy. Howevar, if he intervenes by means of convantional reflationary measures to replace the dissppearing foreign demand for British goods with extra bome lemand, he then restores the original level of demand for imports; and there is no offset in he balance of payments to the lecline in exports, except to the atent that import prices are

This dilemma can only be scaped by using the exchange ute rather than conventional reasures of reflation to meet re impact of a world recession n the home economy. The tethod here is to maintain breign demand for British exorts by making them cheaper to overseas customers. This can work, hut only provided that other countries do not retaliate by similar means, since there is no way that the world can escape the effects of a world recession merely by trying to pass the resulting unemployment on to each other. Moreover, it is a particularly difficult weapon to use when the chief preoccupation of economic policy is damping down inflation at home.

Therefore the prospects for the world economy are decisively important to the shape of Mr Healey's forthcoming Budget. With Britain's rate of inflation and balanca of payments deficit at their present level, no responsible Chancallor can afford to press the British economy very far out of line with trends

There is no question that the world economy has been moving strongly into recession since last winter. This was partly precipitated by the attempts of several major Governments from the summer of 1973 to rein back the excessive rates of expansion and inflation which they had themselvas created by their over-reaction to the 1970-71 recession.

This tentative deflation was powerfully reinforced by the increase in oil prices last winter. This dramatically reduced the purchasing power of consumers' incomes in all oil-using countries; and, since the oil producing countries were not ready to spend the additional revanues which higher prices produced; there was no alternative demand to make good the fall in home demand that occurred in most of the industrial countries and in many non-oil producing developing countries.

This week's reports by the five leading Wast German economic research institutes typifies the pattern of the prospects in most industrial countries. They see output stagnating at its present level until next spring, which means that with rising productivity-that is, output per man employed—unemployment will tend to rise. But the institutes also see a gradual rise in output beginning from next spring and accelerating as the year develops. though still running well below the normal increase in produc-

These prospects and forecasts are based on the present posture of Government fiscal and monetary policies. If reflationary action is taken, as the Chancellor has been preaching all summer that it should be, then the world recession will be aballower and shorter-lived than now looks likely. It is in fact clear enough behind smokescreens of anti-inflationary rhetoric, the major Governments—in Wash-ington, Bonn, Tokyo, London and Paris—are already stoking up their economies.

Action bas already been taken in Paris and London; and more is to come. West Germany looks forward to a large cut in taxes in the new year as a by-product of tax reform, as well as some other fiscal and monetary relaxationa. The American Budget is in fact far more stimulative than the Administration apologias suggest, partly because of substantial spending outside the officially defined "budget" and partly because of persistent large leakages even within it.

The conclusion must be that 1975 will indeed be a recession year, but that it will also see increasingly vigorous reflationary measures in all the main centres. Unemployment in most countries may continue to rise throughout the year; but by the end of it the bottom of the recession in output is likely to bave passed. The greater danger is that the reflationary measures will continue strongly long after the recovery is in fact estab-lished, thereby precipitating excessive expansion and a repeti-tion of the crisis of 1973, only worse this time,

In these circumstances it cannot be said that world prospects alone rule out reflationary action by the Chancellor in November, although they certainly require that it be measured and modest in degree and that it be easily reversible a year later. The arguments against any reflation the obvious symptoms of the at all have to do with bomegrown inflation, not the balance > those who suffered the worst deprivations. We do not want to go back to that. The worst planning delays usually do in-volve some genuine question of conflict of interest which cannot be thoughtlessly dismissed. Some other countries have a zoning system of planning, where a council broadly indicates the type of use it wants in different areas and then accepts more or less any proposal that conforms with the rules. That might have some advantages, but probably not dramatic ones. Building land is scarce often because the councils with the space may not want the size and character of their communities to be transformed. That may be reprehensible where a neighbouring city is desperate for building land, but it is a reasonable motive which should not be overridden without a fair > bearing. Housing is too expensive, durable and important in individual lives to he administered without a certain amount of deliheration. There is much in Lord Goodman's lecture that seems to reflect the frustrations of a powerful mind coming to grips with the intractabilities of a new subject. The spirit of urgency that he calls for can no doubt find many ways to improve the existing processes, but it will not be easy to revolutionize them without creating new objections. It will be interesting to hear what Lord Goodman bas to say later, when he comes down to

The dilemma of birth control

From Mr Frank Field Sir, Critics of Sir Keith Joseph's Birmingham speech bave been accused of "gross misrepresentation", and their criticisms of devaluing the currency of public debate on issues which we ignore at our peril.

These charges better fit Sir Keith Joaeph's own actions. CPAG is in business to belp protect and further the interests of poor families. One way of doing this is m publish detailed research, and the Wynns' article in the lest issue of Poverty was one such example of this. This article was published by the group because it cootained important information on what was happening formation on what was happening to our society, although in publishing it we realized it could be mis-represented in public debate. This to us is preciaely what Sir Kaith Joseph did.

Joseph did.

At any one time only a minority of the population can bear children. The cost of raising the oext geoeration's workforce therefore falls disproportionately on one part of society. The Wynns' article shows that an increasing proportion of children is being born to young mothers and that many of these mothers are poor. The need therefore to share more equitably the cost of raising our next workforce becomes even more important. This was totally ignored by Sir Keith who went on to talk about the degeneration of the race.

We now learn Sir Kaith bas been burt by the reaction m his speech.

Nor is it any comfort for these mothers when Sir Keith now claims that his record as Secretary of State for Social Services should bave protected him from these "misrepreseotations". It is precisely because his atewardship was oot an outstanding one at the Department of Health and Social Security that, after reading the speech carefully, so many people reacted in the way they did.

Yours faithfully, FRANK FIELD,

FRANK FIELD, Child Poverty Action Group, 1 Macklin Street. Drury Lane, WC2. October 22.

From Mr Peter Gellhorn

Sir, The reaction in various quarters to Sir Keith Joseph's speech this weekend shows an even more alarming state of our standards than the evil which he was pointing out. Are we so bigoted, twisted and mean that we can no longer recognize a sincere, responsible and, I would emphasize, compassionate statement when it comes our way? Or must a man who speaks the truth he maligned, misinterpreted and speaking, he may be "mixed np with the wrong gang"? I bave frequently been told that family planning methods are too expensive for thousands of people; now that it is suggested to provide a free service for those who need it we are told that this would mark them out for a secund class existence, with memories of Hitler and, I suppose, Herod. In the name of sanity, bow many ways are we going to have it? Yours faithfully,

PETER GELLHORN, 33 Leinster Avenue, East Sbeen, SW14. October 20.

Gibraltar and Spain

From the Spanish Ambassador Sir, May I take up a few points of Sir Joshua Hassan's statement on what be calls "the Gibraltarian case" (The Timea, October 14) and preface my remarks by saying that I bave every respect for the Gibraltarians, among whom I number some very good friends. I am also conscious of the very buman problems that Gilbraltar poses.

1. He writes that " to describe ua (Gibraltariana) as an artificially imported population is absurd." If by "absurd" he means that this is not the case, his assertion flies in the face of Hismry. It is very well known that in 1704 the original inhabitants, were expelled by the babitants were expelled by the invaders, and neither they nor their descendants have been allowed to return. The colonial authorities have fostered the settlement of immigrants from other countries, to assist in the running of the fortress and the naval base, while always maintaining a careful policy of not letting Spaniards aertla on the Rock.

2. Sir Joshua pretends that "the Spanish Government decies that we have any right at all to express any wishes and claims to protect our interests". This attachment is quite inaccurate. Spain simply denies that the Gibraltarians bave any right to make decisions with regard to a part of Spanish territory that hes never belonged to them, and to which at no time have they held any

Labour's policy for industry

From Lord Roberthall Sir, The letter (October 18) from Mr

Norman Atkioson and others is a most timely illustration of the world of illusion in which this country is now living.

It is only too evident that a "massive public subsidy" to the private sector would, as your corres-pondents say, destroy anything that oow remains of the social compact. It would also make the position of the private sector even more desperate than it now is. Industry desperate than it now is. Industry requires two things

(a) that it should not be taxed on profit figures which very much overstate their real level, and especially on stock appreciation which makes no allowance for inflation;

(b) that it should not be price controlled on the basis of costs well below the real cust it is incurring.

below the real cuat it is incurring. It bappens that in the sama issue of The Times, there is an article by of The Times, there is an article by your Economics Editor, Mr Peter Jay, which inter alia shows the effect of inflation on the real profits of industry. Mr Atkinson and his colleagues should read this articla, and tell industry whether they would regard the remission of taxes on tack. regard the remission of taxes on stock appreciation as a massive public aubaidy; and if so, bow they square the impendiog bankruptcy of Brinish industry with the Government's White Paper, calling for "a vigorous, alert, respossible and profitable private aector"—a commitment repested in the Prime Minister's broadcast of October 14. Yours faithfully, ROBERTHALL.

ROBERTHALL, 34 Maunsel Street, SW1. October 18.

From Mr A. J. Merrett and Mr Allen Sykes Sir, The letter from Mr Norman Atkinsoo and his colleagues (October 18) raises matters of grave import to the bealth and survival of the privete sector of British industry and the multi-million jobs it supports. There is an implied assumption in their letter to the effect that British industry is unworthily seeking unconditional government. worthily seeking ucconditional government aid. The facts are very different.

Through the workings of e price cootrol system which makes inade-quate allowances for the ravages of inflation and permits only half of wage increases to be passed on, plus a corporate tax system that not only makes no allowances for ioflation but has actually been increased at a time of a grave decline in pro-fitability, British industry in aggre-gate (we exclude financial institutioos) on the government's own published figures has been reduced to running at a loss—s fact accepted by the whole of industry, the press, and indeed government spokesmen. What is sought by the overwhelming majority of firms affected is not subsidies, nor yet government financial loans (the idea solely of Harold Lever) hut a reversal of crippling government action which, largely inadvertently, threatens to bring industry to a standstill and to contribute mightily and uncontrollably to unemployment. tioos) on the government's own trollably to unemployment.

Were industry economically incompetent and it could be demonstrated that government cootrol would improve the level of competence theo possibly government help could justifiably be lioked to accountability and equity participation. But when industry has been crippled mainly by government action it is surely entitled to be allowed a remission of Price conallowed a remission of price con-trols and taxation reform. These, coupled with a manifest government determination to permit the mixed economy to flouriah, would restore business coofidence and largely obviate the need for any government subsidies or special financiog arrangemeots.

We do not choose to enter into political debate with Mr Atkinson and bis colleagues, but if they wisb the government directly to own and/ or control more of British iodustry on a major scale, then let them advocate it on its merits and try to achieve it openly for stated reasons. But what they cannot claim in truth is that industry's crisis is of its owo making and therefore it deserves on that eccount to be taken over in major part.

Moreover, Mr Atkinson and bis colleagues have entirely overlooked the point in our September 30 Financial Times article, "The real crisia now facing Britain's iodustry", that in receot years British industry has been operating at quite uneconomic rates of return and is currently operating at sn actual loss. Given these circumstances, and if present conditions and restrictions continue, then even where companies have funds or reserve borrowing powers to finance further investment it would be utterly irresponsible both to shareholders irresponsible both to shareholders end employees to iovest further. To undertake yet more uneconomic iovestment must ultimately result io hankruptcy.

Furthermore, fioancing by state equity or loan capital could at best postpone this inevitable outcome. Hence, under present conditions related for the state of the st neither state oor private ficance is merely floace the problem for a year or two rather than solve it. The need is not for more finance as such, but for acceptable levels of net-of-tax profitability. It must be stated categorically ther if action is not taken speedily to remova the government's tax and price control shackles a great many firms must either fail or so cut back on new investment (survival must be their first priority) that a greet many jobs must be lost in consequence. In that event no action by ministers and civil servants on the unprecedented scale that will then be required cao be sufficient to avert great misery and divisiveoess. Yours faithfully,

A. J. MERRETT, ALLEN SYKES, 9 Downs Road, Epsom, Surrey.

From Mr Edgar Palamountain
Sir, The letters which you published on October 21 from Mr Campbell Adamson and Professor Myddleton illustrate very clearly a cross purpose which confuses a good deal of modern thinking and dehate oo the subject of raxarion. As your correspondents say, industry is not asking for somehody else's money but only for its own. When this is achieved, however, the reduction of tax involved will inevitably he called a "concession". Similarly, in the field of personal taxarion, the From Mr Edgar Palamountain the field of personal taxation, the practice of Labour governments has been to impose the highest direct taxes in the world and then label coocessionary any return to us of our own money. . Mr Atkinson and his friends, however, are oot likely to be convinced because they start from a different place. We have heen assuming that money belongs to those who earn it, whether individuels or companies. Marxists, of course, take a quite different view. It might belp to remove the confusion if all non-Marxists would refuse, as I do, to use the word "concession" in any tax context.

Youra faithfully, EDGAR PALAMOUNTAIN, Three Quays, Tower Hill, EC3.

The Liberals in Scotland

From Mr D. MacDonald Sir, The bopes of Mr Jeremy Thorpe and so many others for a break-up and so many others for a break-up of the two party system, the introduction of electoral reform and, with them, a strengthening of the Liheral Party by the infusion of new blood through the recruitment of moderates in the Conservative and Labour parties have been desbed by the results of last week's general election.

However, sympathy for the Liberal Party must be tempered by the realization that its failure to fulfil the bopes mentioned abova was to a considerable extent self-imposed. The Scottish Liberals chose to contest constituencies in which they had clearly no chance of success, in which it was always evident that their vote would be derisory. They surprised even their best friends with ettempts to resuscitated in the surprised even their best friends with ettempts to resuscitate of them. tate Liberal Associationa, auch as that in West Stirlingahire, long since dead beyond redemption. They astoniabed oot only their friends but also their most fervent supporters by eleventh bour interventions in such constituencies as East

The product of these foolish policies was fifty nine lost deposits poncies was firty nine lost deposits in the sixty eight seats contested in Scotland and victory for the Conservarives over the SNP in four aeats (North Angus & Mearns, East Fife, Kinross & West Perthshire and Ross & Cromarty), but also, much mora significantly, victory for Labour over the SNP in four seats (Dunbartonshire West, Lanark, Midlothian and West Stirlingshire). In these aeats tha SNP candidates would bave been elected hed they taken a reasonable proportion of the Liberal vote.

Had these Labour aeata gone to the SNP, Mr Harold Wilson would not have had bis overall majority not have had bis overall majority of three. The possibility of much needed electoral raform and realignment of moderate opinion would still, therefore, bave been very reel end the prospects of the Liberal Party in less sorry a state. Furthermore, the 60 per cent of the British electorate, which did not vote Labour, might today have had a government of a political complexion much more to its liking.

The Scottish Liberals have therefore a lot to answer for to Mr Thorpe and their English colleagues. What were Mr Donald Gorrie, Mr Russell Johnston et al up to in their Russell Johnston et al up to in their election strategy? Their dislike of the SNP, which they have frequently expressed in emotionally charged terms, and their unavailing deaire to see its progress snifled seam to heve led them, most extravagantly, to sacrifice a glitteriog prize well within their grasp and, coosequantly, to inflict on the Liberal Party as a whole wounds from which it can only recover with the utmost difficulty. difficulty.

Thalidomide fund tax

From Mr N. S. Bulmer Sir, Your leading article (October 22) on the Distillers Fund for thalidomide children is correct to suggest that any tax concessions for the income of the fund should only be given in the context of better tax treetment for all those victima of accidents who rely on the income from compensation they bave recovered. It may also be hoped that any such concessions will also belp those disabled at hirth or by disease who find no one recognible from who find no one responsible from whom to obtain compensation for the fund may be right for this year but will not be so for next. From Mr Healey's Budget debate speaches it is clear that two things will appear in next month's Finance Bill which will have the effect that thalidomide children will not be taxed "at rataa parents. Unless a thalidomide child is also an orpban that child will almost certainly be taxed at a mini-mum rate of 33 per cent.

The other is that, not only for next year onwards but also for this year retrospactively, the 15 per cent investment income surcharge will be applied to incomes over £1,000: this will further reduce the proportion of the 48 per cent deduction which might be recovered for the child. Taking these two provisions together, many thalidomide children may well from next year pay tax at rates higher than 48 per cent.

You are right elso to mention thet the charitable status of the fund is irrelevant for the personal tax circumstances of those receiving in-come from ir, but for the fund itself such atarus is crucial, since it will pay no tax on its own income and from all its resources could make lump sum payments or provide facilities for thalidomide children which would not be taxable.

Powers of the 1922 Committee

From Mr Philip Goodhart, Conservanive MP jor Eromley Beckenham

Sir, As the bistorian of the 1922 Committee I must refute the suggestion of my culleogue Michael McNair-Wilson (October 19) that the present officers and executive of tha 1922 Committee automatically lost their positions when the last Parliament was dissolved.

In fact this point was settled on Jaouary 9, 1924, at the first meeting of the 1922 Committee to be held after the general election on December 9, 1923. The committee then passed a resolution:

That until such time as a new executive committee can be appointed, the remaining members of the executive committee be of the executive committee be empowered to act.

The passage of this resolution in 1924 had important results. Without any further committee elections the existing 1922 executive proceeded to organize a detailed postmortem inquiry into the reesons for the Conservative Party's recent election defeat. They immediately sought the views of past colleagues who had been defeated. The old executive of the 1922 Committee then produced a report which was highly criocal of the way in which the leader of the party, Mr Stanley Baldwin, bad conducted the campaign.

On February 11, 1924, the chairman of the 1922 Committee, who had still not been recleted, called a special meeting of the enmmittee and put forward a resolution which was then carried:

That this meeting of the Conservative private members (1922-23) enumittee expresses its emphatic conviction that the first duty of the parm at this critical juncture is to take such steps as may seem necessary and expedient to place the organization of the party upon a democratic basis and to establish e closer contact hetween the leaders and the rank and file; and thet, for this pur-pose a committee fully represe-sentative of the party should be appointed.

Almost exactly 50 years later, on March 5, 1974, Mr Heath, as leader of the party, accepted an invitation to address a full meeting of the 1922 Committee a formight before the present executive was elected. Those executive elections had been postponed for a hrief period because of the large number of new of the large number of new members.

Every precedent, both ancient and modern, suggests that the old exe-cutive of the 1922 Committee has a duty to meet, to act, and to give advice in the period that must elapse between the end of one Parliament and the holding of elections in the full committee.

Yours faithfully,
PHILIP GOODHART,
House of Commons.

Electoral reform From Professor Lord Kahn

Sir, I have to apologise for an error in my letter (October 11) about electoral reform end the Liherals. The French system which I recom-mend is the French system for the election of a President.

In a Nouonol Assembly election. all candidates who stood in tound ona can stand in round two, except those who received less than 10 per cent of the votes in round one; and in round two a relative majority (not necessarily absolute) secures election. This system does enable electors who find that they wasted their votes in round one to switch their votes. It facilitates electoral pacts and tacit understandings, with the result that in practice in many French constituencies only two candidates do fight round two. I regard the French National Assembly sys-tem as less suitable for this country then the Presidential system, though better then no reform at all. I sm. Sir, your chedient scrvant,

KAHN. King's College, Cambridge.

Men of peace

From Mr Niall Macdermot, QC Sir, You ask who are the contemporary equivalents of Lord Cecil and Sir Norman Angell. May 1 suggest Mr Sean MacBride, who received no mention in your leading erticle of October 14. His award of the Nobal Peace Prize was made, to quote the Chairman of the Award Committee, "in recognition of his efforts of aeveral years duration in order to develop and protect human rights all over the world." These efforts were in the main expended in his dual capacity as my prede-cessor with the International Com-mission of Jurisis and as Chairman of Amnesty International. It is to be hoped that Mr MacBride's continual insistence upon the interdependence of peace and human rights will also, before long, be "absorbed into our modero conaciouaness Yours faithfully, NIALL MACDERMOT, Secretary-General, International Commission of Jurists, Stinsford was chosen by his widow. daughter and sons because of bis many associations with Dorset, very much his favourite English county, and io particular with Thomas Hardy. I thick he would bave been disappointed that the Westminster Abbey authorities have not found bim worthy of a memorial in their poets' corner, and I am sure he would bave kept his disappointment to bimself. On a committee he might have been the first to propose that such memorials he delayed for 50 years after death, when it is known that a poeta work is valued by posterity as well as the people of his own time.

He complains out accusations that the Trafalgar nare proposals (as exhibited in ! National Gallery between 14 and October) are no more than " a blic relations ventura glossed over assuage the public's anxiety". as only the property developer's posals were shown, and as no let alternative was even hinted at, is difficult to see how the public lly had a fair chance to express oplnion. Because of this preileed viewpoint taken by a public ations company on behalf of the relopers, we felt that an alternaviewpoint had to be given, ace our bestily arranged counter-ubition on the steps of St Martin the Fields suggesting that the ildings could be conserved and toysted.

At this exhibition about 6,000 sigures of protest were collected in days. And these were from linary members of the public who t that they had not been told the ole story for given the chance in developer's questionnaire of making their wishes known. They were certainly not "a amail appli-sticated hand of technical critics" which the councillor appears to assume are the only protesters.

The sort of developments proposed in the aouth-east Corner of Trafalgar Square, as this journal bas consistently said, are socially wrong, economically wrong, and visually wrong. The way the proposals bave heen presanted for this vitally important piece of the London scene is a travesty of public participation. The time has gone when the public should be asked to condone wanton destruction and senseless waste. Yours faithfully, LESLIE FAIRWEATHER, Editor.

Zoology: Why dogfish is like chameleon

A study by 200lngists at the University College of North Wales is about halfway to demystifying the process by which dogfish can lighten or darken to match their beckground. It has heen known since the 1930s that hormanes from the pituitary gland are involved in the control of the skin pigment that produces the discreption. Which is often described as that mechanism involved damaging various parts of the pituitary end the pituitary gland are involved in the control of the skin pigment that produces the discreption. PO shake-up may put employees on board

By Maurice Corioa Industrial Editor

A sbake in in the boardroom of the Post Office Corporation, which will include the departure of Sir William Ryland, the chairman, is under urgent consideration by Mr Anthony Wedgwood Benn, Secretary of State for ladustry. State for Industry.

Employee directors may be incloded in the fresh team Mr Benn wants to appoint for a five-year period to implement radical reforms of operations by 1980. A separation of the functions of chairman and chief executive, now combined by Sir William, is among the changes

William, is among the changes under study.

The search is on for the new chairman, salary £23,100 a year, to be named as soon as possible to end uncertainty within the corporation's management.

An extra urgency is that a fuller reform of the board will require the new chairman's backing, as Mr Bean is apparently obliged under the Post Office Act, 1969, to make new board appointments only after consultation with the chairman.

Within and outside Whitehall Within and outside Whitehall various names are circulation as a potential short list for Sir

They include Mr Camphell Adamson, director general of the Confederation of British Industry; Lord Rothschild, who recently gave up as head of the Cabiner's "think tank"; and Mr Christopher Chataway, of Posts and now retired from politics to develop a husiness

In considering board changes, Mr Benn has to have regard to a Treasury view, given in August, that e separation of the functions of chairman and chief executive in a state corporation may be desirable. Can didates for a new Post Office chief executive may well come from within the corporation.

Mr Beon's deep look at the Post Office—and he has power to appoint up to 12 board members—reflects some disappointment with the 1969 structural reforms introduced by Labour, who also selected the unfortunete Lord Hall as chairman (who left under the Conservatives, and allowed the promotion of Sir William).

Swiss bank lost £20m on dealings by client

Zurich, Oct 22

Union Bank of Switzerland revealed today that the loss it suffered earlier this year on forward foreign exchange transactions by one of its clients amounted to 142m Swiss francs (almost £20.9m).

A communique by the bank said its initial announcement on April 11 referred only to talked and corresponded with me during the last few months about the possibility of a "nonprofit economy" do not want the future to be dominated by any combination of irresponsible big business, big finance, big government and big trade

They support an almgether different approach. They want public companies to be made responsible to the public. They think that directors of public companies should be explicitly required to accept respon-sibility for looking after the interests of their employees and their customers, and the wider public interest, as well as the interests of their shareholders.
They would like the directors public companies to he called regularly to account for discharging these responsibili-ties. They want company law to be changed accordingly.

The present crisis in industry provides an opportunity tu introduce a new legal and finan-cial framework for business activity, which will encourage public companies to operate enterprisingly and responsibly in the public interest in a comparatively deceotralized ecocomy.

May I suggest that those of your raaders who prefer this approach to either version of the corporate stata should let their view be known loudly and clearly without delay. If the present opportunity for reform it sallawed to pass, we may regret it bitterly in years to come. Yours faithfully, JAMES ROBERTSON, 21 Phillimore Place, London, W8. October 22.

From Mrs Gwendoline

Sheldrake Sheldrake Sir, The Government talks of applying "splints" to certain commercial casualties in the form of financial support with the option of this support being part government ownership of the said casualties.

Does this not seem a some-what sick policy, taking on casualties instead of practising preventive medicine in the form of lessening of Corporation Tax in general, support of healthy business farms? There would be less unemployment consequently healthiet trade generally.

For several years we bave heard mumurings from the Continent of the English sickness. Please don't let bank-ruptcy become the English epidemic Yours faithfully, GWENDOLINE SHELDRAKE,

Rose Farm. 42 Traps Hill,

Gross profit margins and need to maintain working capital

Sir, I was interested to read Mr McWatters' letter (October 12) about the need to increase gross profit margins to maintain working capital. It is clear that oet profits investment patterns centrally in Whitehall?

after tax alooe are not finan-cing the ever-increasing demand for working capital in times of inflation. However, should they be expected to fund the whole deficit? The value in real terms of existing finance is constantly being eroded. It seems that a large part of the additional amount needed to replace 31 Avenue Elmer stocks, and thus increase working capital, should be derived from maintaining the real value of a company's borrow-ings. In other words, borrowings need to increase con-tioually in order to compensate for the rate of inflation. This raises the question whether the suppliers of ficance for working capital, eg the clearing banks, will be able to meet this demand by increasing their loans to industry every year by 20 per cent, if that is the prevailing rate of inflation.

Yours faithfully, 11 High View, 31 Avenue Elmers,

Consultancy about capital gains

From Mr K. M. S. Chapman Sir. The position mentioned by Mr Paget (October 11) would this Act be may ask for the capital gains tax to be paid by instalments over a maximum period of eight years, but so as last instalment of consideration for the property sold.

The Inland Revenue are not likely to suggest this to Mr appear to be the exact case Paget, but a taxation consult-envisaged by the Finance Act, ant would soon advise what 1972. Uoder the provisions of benefits might be claimed by the taxpayer.

Yours faithfully,
KEITH M. S. CHAPMAN, 13 Kelsey Close,

Key to Kodak's consistency

From Mr Joseph Lucas Sir, There is an interesting comment in comment on Forbes magazine for October 15 (page 27). It is that only two of the 30 stocks comprising the Daw Jones Industrial Index (East-pall of Camble) are ahead for the 10 years period since 1964 (30 per lively) on a cost-of-living adjusted price. Sir, There is an interesting com-

This fact ought to be must fascinating to wellwishers for England and America. Why Kodak, with a product by no means as essential as soap?

Well, Kodak is just about the most successful company employing more than 500 peohas learnt how to make profit-sharing work in a large enterprise.

Too bad the British Liberal" Party could not have made, better use of this ioformation, during the recent elections. Class warfare will always be a second to the country of the country war between jackasses. Yours faithfully, 441 JOSEPH LUCAS, High Hay Bridge, Bouth-by-Ulversinn, La TE MATARILLA

By the end of this year car and food stocks should bave been reduced to managable proportions and financing costs should be down proportionately. The early part of next year should see both premium on the new, nil-paid shares—subscription price 60p a abare—niight well have been considered embarrassing at any considered embarrassing at any other time, but in present circumstances could only he expected to draw a huge aigh of relief. Nor, remembering that the last day for acceptances falls 24 bours abead of Mr. Healey's November Budget, should there be too much danger of any late upset.

Looking back over the past danger of any late upset.

Looking back over the past couple of months or so, it is, perhaps, surprising just bow resilient the UC price has proved. Ahead of the St Martins bid in mid-August the shares stood at 106p. Since then the price bas been as low as 72p (immediately following news of the rights issue) but a subsequent rally meant that by Monday's close the cum-rights price bad under performed the composite sector over the period by only 6 points. And with a prospective yield of 131 per cent at last night's 75p, exper cent at last night's 75p, ex-rights, yield is now only mar-ginally higher than the prospective for the aector as a whole.

The what extent the whole episode provides any benchmark for future rights aspirants is another matter. Certainly it is now clear that anything can be done at a price. But until the market feels that it can see more than a few days ahead with any confidence, rights lesses will continue to need yields somewhere in the strato-

Harrisons & Crosfield

Cyclical peaks

Harrisons & Crosfield had it all his own way last year, with commodity prices on the up-swing, and a massive increase in twing, and a massive increase in timber earnings, plus a buoyant time for the United Kingdom themical and processing com-panies. But preliminary results paint a particularly rosy picture, for the Sabab timber ind builders merchanting group which takes in the areas of T& C most given to cyclical accesses, closes its books in becember, while the rest steams n to June. Sabah has already onounced profits of £9.6m for 973, against £4.1m, which fits ith yesterday's operating profit gures of £10.Sm against £4.Sm or H & C's timber division. So onsolidation of the figures sees abah at a cyclical peak, under-ned by a fall of a fifth in prex profits for the next six onths to Juoe. If that is one vulnerable area, mmodities is another. Agency rvices, shipping and general erchanting, which includes the ilk of the group's overseas terests excluding timber con-ibuted a f2m increase in ading profits to £4.8m. Here, the group has obviously ne well on the back of rising bber, ten and palm oil prices, th Asian earnings increasing cir share of the total from 38

r cent to 41 per cent. In the trent year be pickings here il not be as good, although palm oil price bas been ong in recent weeks. Results from the United agdom industrial interests, ere the contribution fell m 47 per cent to 42 per cent the group's pre-interest total wed trading profits of £3.8m, unst £1.5m. The group is coy lut bow much British Chrome mibuted in its maiden eight nths, but the probability is t the amount is negligible

1 raised for the acquisition, ich bas been the main reason rums. With the share unchanged at S50p yesterday a p/e ratio of 5 looks about right, while a 6 per cent yield, after the 2S per cent increase in the dividend, is oo support.

Sears

It might have been worse

Sears Holdings' interim results Sears Holdings' interim results are more encouraging than the 22 per cent fall in profits might suggest. The detailed hreakdown of the trading profits reveals no horror stories; rathet there are one or two above-average performances, compared with what might bave been expected. Weak spots were engineering, with a £3.4m drop to £2.2m, reflected the slump in world wide orders for knitting macbinery with no sign of any upturn. But Bentley sbould bave a much larger abare of the market when the cycle does eventually recover. Betting, profits halved at £1.4m, suffered from a punter's para-dise in May and June but in the slacker winter season there is no chance of the damage being fully recovered.

More positively, department stores £410,000 down at £2.7m turned in figures above what might bave been expected. This is borne out by the footwear activities only £543,000 lower at £8m in a period covering the three-day week and price con-

Sears bas bought a Ford distributorship in the Home Countries, apparently capable of an annual turnover of £5m. This may have been a cheap acquisiwill be some way off. Those bears who feared that a disastrous year for car and food importaing would more than destroy whatever gains Tozer Kemsley & Mill bourn might make elsewhere have been fully vindicated so far. The group's timing could hardly have been less bappy. Ahead of the oil crisis it was looking for BMW sales of around 15,000 this year and ordered accordingly, but now it thinks it will be lucky to top the 6,500 mark. On the food side the sory is similar, with bousewife resistance to highly-priced goods proving mora formidabla than TKM anticipated. an average completion time of 12 months, this obviously proved to be optimistic. So, price adjustment clauses bave beeo the order of the day for the past nine months and it is no surprise that APE is currectly refusing to accept any contract over two years, whereas previously it was happy to take husioness up to five years. take busioess up to five years.

Meanwhile, there are some further inflation-hit contracts to come through and the secood balf looks like being well down on the comparable figure for last year. However, margins should recover next year and APE bas no sbortage of work.
Orders from the Middle East alone for diesel engines, pumps and turbines account for around 80 per cent of present capacity and £1.5m of new plant coming on stream sbortly should belo remove bottlenecks. That leaves shortage of outside aupplies such as castings as the chief constraint on output. This is also adding to APE's work in progress burden. Though, typically, stock is turned over twice a year and progress payments ameliorate the burden, the current need to provide around £11m of additional stock finance every six months is causing concern. Business Diary: Mr Healey turns a phrase • Blank check

A liquidity problem for Mr Lever

Much discussion has taken place in financial and political circles of suggestions that the Government will soon establish a banking institution, under official auspices, to supply medium and long-term fixed interest finance to industry.

The idea is particularly associsted with Harold Lever, Chancellor of the Duchy of Reaction has been mixed. Some City men have given the proposal a cautious welcome while others have suggested that it might be a Trojao borse for more public intervention in The proposal has been made more topical and urgent by the difficult financial problems facing industry. But although there bas been a tendency to confuse them, there are two distinct issues requiring different answers.

ferent answers. The first is the availability of long-term finance for indus-trial companies. Normally it is possible for them to issue dehentures or to increase their equity capital by rights issues. But these two routes are not now open. The collapse in share prices bas made it nowise to increase equity capital because it is prejudicial to existing shareholders. Equally, bigh rates of inflation bave destroyed the marker in new long term fixed. market in new long-term fixedinterest finance.

The risks to both bortower and lender are too great.

The drying-up of long-term finance predates the Stock Exchange decline, It is, therefore, of longer standing than the second main problem, the pressing sbortage of company liquidity.

The liquidity crisis is quite different. It arises because companies bave in the past two years greatly increased their short-term borrowings and are oow bamstruog by unbalanced capital structures and bigh in-

The three-day week, the downturn in demand and price controls bave also severely eroded corporate profitability. The result is that not only are companies reluctant to bor-row more, but also banks are

England Quarterly Bulletin of such thiogs as certificates of there are "prudential" con-deposit—but these are merely If loog term finance were ooce again available this would alleviate the short-term liquidity crisis, because it would enable companies to restore a better balaoce between their loog and short-term oblig-ations and between their equity sharebolders and their creditors. But this is the only important link between the two problems.

The Lever bank would not, therefore, in itself be directly useful in easing the liquidity crisis. The amounts involved emough: Over the weekend Mr Lever put forward the figure of £1,000m as the capital of the bank.

Clearly, not all of this could be least out immediately. Yet the most widely quoted esnmate of the corporate sector's financial deficit this year is £3.000m. But what about the suitabi-method of relieving the long-term problem? Would it be either feasible or desirable? The main practical problem, as for any bank, is to obtain finance. The Government has three options—to sell govern-ment stock, to raise the money supply or to borrow from

It should be unnecessary to catalogue the drawbacks of each of these methods as they are sufficiently obvious to anyone observing or working in financial markets.

The trouble is that, if his public statements are ro be believed, the drawbacks do not believed, the drawbacks do not seem to bave occurred to Mr Lever. Over the weekend be said: "If you ask where the money will come from, it will come partly by rhe replacement of money, which traditionally went into industry, which provests described on the contract described on which now gets deposited on short-term basis elsewhere."

There are two coofusions bere. The first is that Mr Lever seems not to realize that all deposits are ultimately matched by advances to in-dustry or government (or the personal sector). It is, there-fore, unclear what the little word "elsewbere" means.

Mr Lever may be thinking instruments to enable banks to smooth out their leoding and bortowing operations. lending and borrowing is to and from consuming and producing agents in the ecooooiy. The second is the apparent belief that it is possible 10 create new sbort-term funds. This is not so-unless the Gov-ernment is contemplating an increase in the money supply of mammoth proportions.

If the Government sells sbort-dated gilts and then uses the funds to set up the bank, the price of short-dated gills will fall and the rate of interest throughout financial markets will rise. This will discourage companies from bor-rowing as much as they do at present from conventional pri vate sources.

They may borrow more from public sources—because, of course, Mr Lever's bank would exist by then. But there is no way in which the net availability of funds can be increased.

Two and two make four. You can change the numbers to three and one, but they will still add up to four, not five.

Mr Lever might say that be would be transferring funds from the sbort-term to the long-term market. But what, then, about the liquidity crisis which is essentially a sbort-term problem?

There is one more possibility—that the Government will request (or instruct) banks to lend to companies at subsidized rates of interest, in the same way that they do at present for Export Credits Guarantee Department loans and to the sbipbuilding industry. But then there could be no disguise of public interventions.

The banks would not know which companies to lead to and would have to await instructions from the relevant minister and his civil servaots. This is a situation which is already found in Italy, a country which presents a spec-tacle of financial disarray not usually thought desirable to Government policies add to builders' worries

The building industry has cried glnom, doom and despondency for so long that when, as now, it really finds itself io a largescale slump, understanding by the public, its interest dulled by constant propagandiziog, is perhaps less acute than it might be. Only where the crisis impinges directly—in housing—is the public fully aware of the gravity of the situation.

for one of the worst patches they have experienced since World War Two. House-building bas reached ludicrously low levels, industrial and commercial construction face a con-tinuing slump, road building is in a state of virtual paralysis and materials manufacturers are cutting back on production and closing down plants.

Hardly the most propitious moment then for a debilitated industry to debate rationally with the Government about profound structural changes for the industry. Building leaders are waining with trepidation for the Queen's Speech, for two out the three main proposals likely to figure in that pro-gramme are total anathema to the industry and the third will be accepted only with reserva-The least controversial item affront, but more and more builders are coming to the con-clusion that there is a sort of Gresham's Law in the industry which dictates that bad labour drives out good.

While the industry may be prepared to make concessions on the labour front it is likely to fight tooth and nail to obstruct the implementation of gravity of the situation.

As winter approaches, the building and civil engineering Labour Party theorists: the iodustries are clearly beading public ownership of development land and increased state participation in huilding itself.

hand of local authorities,

The Government's proposals on the nationalization of development land, outlined in a White Paper in September, are a politically astute response to e public clamour, growing in intensity since the beginning of the seventies, for a curb on the speculators.

Quite simply it is proposed that local authorities should have not merely the right but the duty to acquire all land required for private development at current use values ignoring potential increases in value from development whether it be bousing, commercial or industrial. With local authorities as the socially responsible intermediary it is intended that development should benefit the community rather than line the pockets of the landowner or developer.

Having acquired the land the authority will then normally retain its freebold, enabling the community to realize the development value by granting leases to builders and property companies at the full market

The logic behind the scheme is unimpeachable. What builders fear is that in the translation from theory to practice the system will misfire, bureaucracy will slow down the whole process of bringing land to the market and the result will be a scarcity of suitably located, realistically priced acreage for devetically priced acreage for deve-

Government's expected gramme-the extension of public ownership in the construc-tion industries—is a shadow which bas bung over the industry for years. Where builders are at a disadvantage Where In the debate is in not knowing precisely what the Govern-ment bas in miod. There would appear to be several possible strategies, which could be alternatives or could be used to complement another.

First the Government might take a significant stake in one or more of the major building companies, Wimpey for example, or set up its own corporation to compete with private builders. Alternatively it might seek a more diluted particip-ation in a larger number of companies.

The difficulty with all these approaches is the size and diversity of tha industry—a jumble of 80,000 firms, mostly of small or medium size. Control of Winner mich size the trol of Wimpey might give the Government the largest single stake in British bousebuilding, but even Wimpey controls only around 6 per cent of the mar-

Instead of these bead-on measures builders expect a more roundabout approach—a beeting up of local authority direct labour building depart-ments. Over the years the industry has expended more energy on this subject than nn any other, pointing to what they see as the inability of local councils to gat tha job done in reasonable time at

Funding oil deficits: start of a more difficult phase of oil money flows is twofold-first, to analyse where the mem bers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are lovesting their surpluses and, secondly, to point out the difficulties of international financial recycling of oil funds for anything but the relatively short term.

Recent "guesstimates" place the combined current account surpluses of the OPEC nations for 1974 at about $65,000m, which would bring their financial assets up to a level of about $80,000m by the cnd of the

However, it should be noted that with the export prices of goods from industrial countries goods from industrial cuuntries soaring (eg, United States export prices rose by 28 per cent between the second quarter of 1973 and 1974), this surplus could be several thousand nillions of dollars lower than 565,000m—but still big ennual to break the system, if not now, then later.

During the first six months of 1974, untal reported international reserves of the OPEC nations rose by 517,500m, of which $3,500m was invested directly in New York (more than half of that accounted firm by Venezuela), $2,100m (in sterling) in the United Kingdom and nearly all of the rest placed in the Eurndollar market maioly to London, although with a beavy bias inwards the with a beavy bias inwards the branches of United States banks.

By the end of September. total OPEC reserves had risen by about $28,000m (exact figures are not yet available) with reserves currently rising at about $4,000m.$4,500m a month.

Of the total increase in sterling boldings of £884m between December and June (£1,114m from September, 1973, to June, 1974) the bulk appears to have gooe into Treasury bills, govern-ment stocks and deposits with local authorities, with sur-prisingly little being placed with United Kingdom banks in the form of sterling bank deposits. Over the past few weeks, the partern of OPEC flows bas begun to change with a signifi-cant pick-up in the rate of inflows inm New York, even though the United Kingdom appears to have remaioed a magnet for oil funds, judging by the behaviour of reserves. Up to the end of September the inflow of funds into New York was a little under $7,000m, which means that the flow of funds in the third quarter was as big as in the entire first half of the year.

market has declined, even though banks in that market have still takeo in large amounts of deposits. Also, Japan borrowed $1,000m directly from Saudi Arabia io September and it is likely that these types of transactions will continue outside normal market channels.

Traditional

On the basis of this trend by the end of the year OPEC reserves will bave risen by $40,000m-$45,000m, with the difference between this figure and the current account surplus being accounted for by special inter-government loans from the oil producers (as in the case of lending to stata enterprises in Western Europe), grants to less developed nations, prepayments for goods, real estate acquisitor goods, real estate acquisi-tions (such as the recent purchase of St Martins Proparty Corporation by the Kuwait Investment Fund) and equity investments (eg. the partial purchase of Krupp by Iran).

Why then bave the oil producers chosen these particular patterns of investments? Perhaps the simplest and most reasonable explanation is that they bave adhered in the main to their traditional investment outlets.

Given the increased scale of the oil payments and tha sheer size of the funds to invest against a backgrnund of difficult communications and limited manpower, it is bardly surprising that the oil pro-ducers continued to do what they bad done in earlier days. The United Kingdom has long been a favoured home for Investments from Kuwait, Nigeria and the Arab emirates and this is now standing us in very good stead.

However, an equally import-ant development in inter-Malcolm Brown national money flows was a $14,000m increase in international lending by United

The excuse for returning to States banks in the first seven the now omnipresent problem months of the year after the balance of payments in late January.

Almost $8,000m was lent to the developed nations, with Japan receiving $4,400m and the United Kingdom almost $1,000m. Also loans by United States banks to the developing nations (Brazil, Mexico and so on amounted to $3,000m.

After four years of capital cootrols, Untied States banks took full advantage of their new freedom and immediately reestablished themselves as an important force in the Internamional financial market, rather than being forced to work through their overseas branches in the Eurocurrency

Eurodollars

This flow of money from the United States at one remove helped to fuel the Eurodollar market and enable hanks to increase Eurodollar loans. For example, loans from the United ample, loans from the United States to Japan enabled that country to pay for its oil imports with the oil producers then choosing to deposit those additional dollars in the Eurodollar market, thereby expanding the balance species of Eurodollar banks.

Total publicly announced Eurocurrency credits in the first nine months of 1974 exceeded $24,000m, with a large propor tion being channelled to indus-nial countries. Thus, the basic picture which has cruerged so far in the paticrn of international capital flows in 1974 is that, mainly because of bank lending, most advanced iodustrial countries cand many developing countries! bave been able to finance their balance of payments deficits in large measure by borrowing rather than selling their international reserve assets. The question is what bappens next?

What is often forgotten in the debate about oil money flows is that unless the OPEC nations re-lead funds to the oil-consuming countries in amounts sufficient to cover any balance of payments deficits, then additional oil payments have to be effected either through the sales of reserve assets or the countries have to borrow from other quarters.

Unfortunately, baoks are finding it difficult to take to additional deposits, with a few banks already refusing oil dollars and with many prime United States banks bidding for deposits at below the market rate. Simulraceously, the rate of increase of intercational bank loans either from the United States or from the Eurodollar market bas railed off and it would be optimistic for deficit countries to look for This suggests that the relative off and it would be optimistic proportion of funds being for deficit countries to look for deposited in the Eurodollar more loans from the banking

For these reasons more OPEC funds are being channelled ioto the United States Government securities market and this pattern can be expected to intensify. To take an extreme case, if all the additional surplus funds are invested in these markets and the United States Government does not lend, then deficit countries must sooner or later start selling their reserve assets to finance their payments deficits. Even valuing gold at the market price, world reserves other than for the United States and the OPEC nations are about $150,000m. Moreover, these reserves are unevenly distributed, so that it is clear that without massive lending it would not be long before some countries simply run out of reserves m pay for their

We bave had the easy stage of oil money recycling, with banks being able and willing to lend 10 many deficit countries, but this is nearing an end.
The basic problem is who is to do the needed lending when there is at present no end in sight to the massive surpluses of the OPEC nations? The United States cannot and will not underwrite all deficit nations without limit and while an International Monetary Fund lending facility will be of great belp in giving extra time to work out permanent solutions, that insultunou is in no position to lend indefinitely with no likelihood of being repaid.

What is clear is that the figures bandied about on the future level of OPEC reserves rising to bundreds of thousands of millions of dollars are simply extrapolations and it is difficult to imagine bow these payments can be met; and it only needs to be borne in mind that that entire United States money supply is less than $300,000m.

The mood of the investment community was again unsettled Scotland caused by the trans-port strike. The City also sbowed some uneasiness regarding prospects for the Budget. A wage claim on behalf of 1 mil-lion construction workers reawakened awakened fears of another round of inflation. These fears were not helped by the dis-closure that wage rates had risen by more than 20 per cent over the past 12 months.

Against this background, major shares traded cautiously, opening a shade easier, then improving on an absence of sellers, only to fall back during the last hour. ICI (164p) and Dunlop Ridgs (31p) closed the session with minor losses. Wall Street's overnight strength lifted Rank + As forecast + Adjusted for scrip.

Organisation, Glaxo Holdings. Fisons and some other United States orientated sbares.

A firm feature once again was Reed International 2p up at 170p with trading results due next Monday.

Considerable interest focused sround the first dealings in the Commercial Union rights issue shares. The new shares quickly traded up to 75p, compared with the 60p issue price. Turnover was brisk at first but died away later, and the premium was reduced to 13\(^12\)p. In their exrights form, the old shares of Commercial Union stood at 75\(^12\)p. The outcome of the Commercial Union rights debut gave a boost in the financial and banking sections.

Barcleys Bank and Lloyds Bank edged forward. Among the secondary bankers, there was a good recovery in Slater Walker Securities (4p up at 48p), with some quarters taking the view some quarters taking the view that last weeks setback—in the wake of the suspension of Jessel Securities shares—had been overdone. Also firmer yesterday were Hambros Bank (3p up at 83p). But hire purchase shares looked unsupported—Mercantile Credit dipping m 27p, United Dominions Trust duwn to 22p and Wagon Finance easier at 24p.

On the industrial side, sbares in G Kent turned easier on tha announcement that the Govern-ment was supporting the Brown Boyeri offer, and thus ruling out the GEC counter mave.

British Dredging auditors qualify | Comfortably the best year accounts on Avonmouth subsidiary

By Our Financial Staff

After a disappointing year—the second half produced a loss of £172,000, against a profit of £458,000—Mr D. Mostyn Bowles, British Dredging's chairman expects the group's position to lmprove this year, although be is extremely cautious about prospects.

The accounts, meanwhile, contain qualifications by the auditors on three counts. Ooe is that the company has exceeded the borrowing limits imposed by the trust deed for the 74 per cent debenture stock, to rectify the situation.

The other items coocern the Avonmouth subsidiary, which was acquired as from October 3, 1973. In November, 1973, an installation carried out by Avon-mouth failed under test and an investigation is being conducted consequences of the failure. No provision has been made in the World trade in copper at peak last year The explosion in world demand for copper during 1973 is analysed to a new world flow table published today by the World Bureau of Memi Smostics. International

United Kingdom consumption of lead was 22,967 metric toos during August, according to latest data from the World Bureso of Metal Statistics. This does nothing to reverse the present declining trend which to the first eight months of the year was 9 per cent below the same period of 1973 at 217,675 tonoes.

Consumption of scrap and remelted lead was severely depressed and for the first eight months was 30 per cent dowo.

Imports of refined lead were 8,359 tonoes during July, bringing the seven mooths total to 50,605 tonnes, an increase of 6.6 per cent over the same period last year. Exports were 8,428 tonnes during July, bringing, the aggregate for the first seven months to 50,858 tonnes or 14 per cent down on the same period last year.

Stocks of refined lead at consumers were 19,590 tonnes at the end of August compared with 18,243 tunnes at the end of July. of Memi Smostics. International trade in copper to cooceotrates at 1.2m metric tons was at record levels and represented over 15 percent of world mine production of 7.5m tonnes. Canada was by far the largest exporter (345,000 tonnes) and Japan the major impurter (832,000 tonnes). Similarly trade in refined copper at 2.7m tonnes was at a new peak at 2.7m tonnes was at a new peak reflection the sharp rise of 9.5 per cent in consumption to 8.7m tonnes. Exports by the four Cipec countries (Chile, Peru, Zaire and Zambia) were almost 1.3m tonnes or 47 per coot of the total.

Copies of this table which traces the complete flow of unwrought metal from mioes to cousumers are available from the World Buceau, 6 Bathurst Street, Loodon, WZ 25D at £12 cach (post free).

"This heritage of concern"

Our Times announcement of October 11 referring to the national crises appealed for sacrifices so that help for the needy aged could grow. We suggested that those who help Britain's good causes are qualified by their sacrifice to make a national call for sacrifice at this time. We now ask all who wish to be kept further informed to send their name and address to be entered on our mailing list. This can . of course include the descendants of those who helped establish our hospitals and many of the services taken for granted today. Those who wish can be informed of voluntary work available if so desired.

Donations can also help

With the prospect of playing host to the 34 other governments for the final phase of the Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe early next year, Finland has been faced with a number of domestic crises. These have been brought about by attempts to introduce stringent new measures to curb inflation. This Special Report will examine. the current political and economic position. In addition the report will look at the way in which Finland competes with the traditional exporting countries of the world by developing specialized industries producing items like ice-breakers, rollon, roll-off ferries, oil-drilling platforms, machinery for forest industries and high-quality cruising and racing yachts. The report will also look at the more traditional side of the country and the Finnish way of life in general.

Modern technology in newsprint production at our Summa Mills

The packaging of the output of the mill is centralized. Identification of the rolls at the loading station and the control of the wrapping and marking is done by pre-punched cards for each roll. The punch cards direct the rolls to the railway or the truck-loading station. The sorting of the rolls according to orders and roll size and loading into trucks is automatic. The truck drivers get the dispatch lists by taking the punch cards from the rolls and feeding them into the reader.

A saving approach to wolves

Many of us tend always to think of Scandinavia and Finland as having a particu-larly clean environment. But this is often far from the truth. For instance, more than half of Finland's 4,750,000 population lives near polluted waters. Even the Baltic seas are seriously threatened by uncontrolled dumping and spillage of waste matter from ships and untreated effluent from the seaboard countries, particu-larly those with big con-

The pulp, paper and forest induspulp, paper and forest indus-tries generally poured a stream of toxic waste material into the lakes and seas, and also into the atmosphere, almost uncon-trolled until the last decade. The metal extracting and treatment industries must also share part of the hlame for atmospheric pollution.

Kymmene Aktiebolag Means Quality in Paper and Three Other Branches.

Paper Group

Paper products make up half the output of Kymin Osakeyhtiö – Kymmene Aktiebolag. The Company's share of the entire Finnish paper production is about 15%.

Roughly 85% of the paper output is exported, a considerable portion of it earmarked for Great Britain.

The Paper Group makes coated paper and board qualities in addition to high grade magazine, writing and printing paper.

Kymmene Aktiebolag's subsidiary in Great Britain - Star Paper Limited operates paper mills in Blackburn and Barnsley.

The combined annual paper and board production of Kymmene and Star amounts to about 700,000 tons.

Engineering Group

The Group's share of the entire output of Kymmene is 20%.

The Company operates four metal factories, which are located in different parts of Finland. Hogfors Foundry is among the biggest of its branch in the whole of Scandinavia. Production is chiefly concentrated on boilers, industrial castings and sanitary installations. The products are marketed in Finland and abroad under the traditional name of Högfors, which has been in use for 150 years. The expanding exports consist of radiators, heating substations, valves and gear boxes. Metal products are marketed in Great Britain by Kymmene Engineering (UK) Limited in Blackburn, a sales company.

Lumber, Pulp & Power Group

The Group supplies the paper industry with round wood and power, and also controls the Sawmill and Pulp Divisions. Nearly half the output of Halla Sawmill is absorbed by the British market. The greater part of the sawn goods is used in the building industry.

The Pulp Division supplies pulp to the Company's paper mills in Finland and to those of its subsidiaries abroad.

Chemical Division

This rapidly expanding Division makes chlorine, caustic soda, various industrial gases and petro-chemical products.

The main export item is at present phthalic anhydride for use in the paint and plastics industry.

Kymmene means high quality, not only in paper products, but also in three other industrial branches.
